A BRIGHT FUTURE AHEAD

“Grown up more than the country’s economy last year, the Turkish real estate market will not lose its appeal thanks to great positive developments.”

Aziz Torun
Chairman, GYODER

Turkey is one of the rising stars of the world economy with its stable growth and international achievements. Turkey’s performance in the last 10 years has made the country the 17th largest economy in the world, offering a great potential for investment as an emerging market.

Turkey has already set ambitious goals such as being the 10th largest economy and making Istanbul the world capital of finance. Construction and real estate sectors are the main powerful tools to achieve these goals. Upgraded to investment grade by international credit rating agencies in recent years, Turkey has also remained as a popular location for international investors. According to “Emerging Trends in Real Estate Europe 2014”, an annual forecast published by PricewaterhouseCoopers and Urban Land Institute, Istanbul is still well-regarded for future developments. Thus, Istanbul, the property capital of Turkey, will definitely continue holding a great potential for new investments, unlike many other European cities.

Many positive developments have been recorded in the Turkish real estate sector over the last few years. Urban regeneration was at the top of the sector’s agenda. Thanks to the enactment of the “Law of the Regeneration of the Areas under Disaster Risk”, buildings under risk are now being demolished and new structures with international standards are bringing out. On the other hand, restrictions for foreigners acquiring property in Turkey have been eased with the enactment of the “Reciprocity Law” in 2012. Turkey is offering new opportunities for institutional investors after enabling one of the main investment tools of the capital market, REITs, as well as financial instruments like real estate funds, infrastructure REITs, and lease certificates. Grown up more than the country’s economy last year, the Turkish real estate market will not lose its appeal thanks to such great developments.

With annual real estate summits and conferences, education seminars organised in collaboration with universities, as well as monthly indexes and reports, GYODER, as the “Real Estate Platform of Turkey,” continues to provide leadership for the sector.

We wholeheartedly believe that the economy of Turkey will continue to grow in the upcoming years and the Turkish real estate market has a bright future.

“The upcoming era will be an era of crazy projects that will crown the city of İstanbul.”

BUILDING A SOLID FUTURE

Providing a great experience of the industry, the international real estate show MIPIM has a history of 19 years. The trade fair makes sharing of knowledge and experience easier, welcoming real estate professionals from international companies annually. Sharing of knowledge and experience is vitally important in building the future. How are we going to build the future? Is it possible to build a solid future with sustaining the fierce competition of the past?

The future is definitely not in this fierce competition's devastating outcomes. You cannot imagine a future with such an ambition levelling everyone to the ground. We believe in sharing knowledge and collaborations. We can only shape the future in solidarity and with hard work. Our job is building the future, not only mere construction. We are regenerating the city of İstanbul step by step. We are not only building green and earthquake-resistant structures, also establishing a people-oriented, prosperous city. Remained in the top-four according to recent annual researches and surveys, İstanbul is a well-regarded city for development and investment. İstanbul will be a top location for real estate investments in the near future, Jones Lang LaSalle, one of the world's leading investment management and real estate services company, has predicted. The “İstanbul Finance Centre” project, large-scale urban transformation projects and the enactment of the reciprocity law have strengthened the position of the city. The 800,000 sqm of gross leasable area will reach to a level of 2,7 sqm, according to the Jones Lang LaSalle's report. We have achieved this success in solidarity. The secret of success is not the ambition to win, it is the spirit of solidarity.

I hope you will all enjoy MIPIM, and I wish the potential partnerships between Turkish and international companies may bring good luck to you all.

TURKEY OFFERS GREAT OPPORTUNITIES

Turkey has undergone a profound economic transformation over the last decade and its economic fundamentals are quite solid. It is the 17th largest economy in the world and the 6th largest economy in Europe with a current GDP of approximately USD 786 billion in 2012. Favorable geographical position, population growth and demographic advantage, increase in per capita income, urban renewal and development adequacy, mass capacity and power in the Turkish construction sector and easiness of doing business are all demand drivers of the real estate sector in Turkey. 19.5% of the total GDP represents the construction and real estate sectors in Turkey, which creates great investment potential in the sector. It is important to note that, real estate, rental and business activities in GDP, increased from TRY 1 billion to TRY 19 billion in 2012.

The average share of construction, real estate, rental and business activities and new house sales in total GDP increased by 16.7% between 2000 and 2005. However, the sharpest increase was observed between 2006 and 2009 with 20.5%. Looking over the “investment” side, it is seen that the FDI inflow rose to USD 13.22 billion in 2012, real estate and construction received USD 1.601 billion of total FDI. Following the enactment of the reciprocity law, sales of real estate to foreigners marked an increase in the last two quarters of 2012, and reached USD 2.64 billion. The Ministry of Environment and Urbanization announced that real estate sales to foreigners increased from 2% to 5-6% in the last ten months of 2013.

Turkey's commercial capital, İstanbul, is a gigantic city with an abundance of historical and cultural assets as well as ample commercial opportunities, as such, the city can compete with other metropolises like Moscow, Paris, London, Tokyo and New York. Emerging Trends in Real Estate Europe 2013, prepared by PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC) and Urban Land Institute (ULI), ranks İstanbul as the most attractive real estate market with regard to “Development Prospects” based on the city's exciting real estate potential.

Similarly, Turkey was listed as “the top improver” in the Global Real Estate Transparency Index 2012, which measures real estate investment performance with owned real estate, public real estate securities and unlisted real estate funds among 97 markets. The potential of the market and clarity in transaction process enabled Turkey to be ranked as top improver in the last two consecutive years.

Major facts and figures about the existing situation, strategic plans and the future projects in the pipeline show that the real estate sector bears huge potential for investors. The total number of houses sold reached 529,000 in property market in 2013, 299 shopping centers with a total gross leasable area of 8.2 million sqm are operating all over Turkey. 91 shopping centers located in İstanbul represent 46% of the total leasable shopping center area in Turkey. There is vast potential for investors in the retail market since only 54 of the 81 provinces have shopping centers in the country. Office construction licenses obtained throughout Turkey increased by 27%, reaching 6.84 million sqm.

In accordance with Turkey's ambitious 2023 targets, two new cities are planned to be built in İstanbul. One of them is planned to be built in Kemerburgaz, on the European side of İstanbul, and the other will be in Tuzla, on the Asian side. The Asian part of the project will be adjacent to Sabiha Gökçen International Airport. The European part will also include an airport. New airport project in İstanbul is planned to be built adjacent to the new settlement site. These cities will have a capacity to accommodate a population of 1 million which is expected to reduce the population density in the city center of İstanbul, as well as create new investment and employment opportunities.

Another upcoming giant project is Canal İstanbul, which is an artificial sea-level waterway between the Black Sea and Sea of Marmara. The channel will be 25 meters in depth and 145 to 150 meters in width. Planned length of the channel is around 45 km and it is projected to be inaugurated by 2023, the 100th anniversary of the foundation of Turkish Republic. Projected cost of the project is USD 10 billion. It is forecasted that the channel will create abundant real estate opportunities around itself.

Attracting investment to the Turkish real estate market has been an important element of ISPAT's strategy. It has been closely cooperating with the Association of Real Estate Companies (GYODER) in Turkey to organize overseas roadshows. ISPAT and GYODER organized such events in London and Dubai, targeting major real estate investors in these cities. Having successfully organized such events, ISPAT be GYODER will continue to organize new roadshows in other countries, promoting Turkey's real estate sector to the global business community.

The country is a major energy corridor and serves as a terminal connecting demand and supply rich regions. With its existing potential, mega projects and ambitious targets set for 2023, Turkey offers great opportunities for investors in the real estate sector.

“The new regulatory framework, diversifying the financial products on real estate and increasing the financing alternatives for real estate companies, strongly backs the development of the sector.”

RESTRUCTURING CAPITAL MARKETS

While Turkish economy keeps its development with annual 5% growth rate over the past decade, capital markets are experiencing a historical transformation. Solid structural reforms sustained the grounding force to create such an important transformation process. Over the one year period that started with the new Capital Market's Law, Borsa İstanbul became a joint stock company and separate exchanges of Turkey merged under the umbrella of Borsa İstanbul. Vertical and horizontal consolidations made Borsa İstanbul a “one-stop shop” for financial instruments, and investors now have the opportunity to trade in a wide range of products which include equities, fixed income instruments, derivatives and commodities. New markets are established and technological infrastructure of Borsa İstanbul is empowered thanks to our strategic partnership with NASDAQ-OMX. Borsa İstanbul will obtain the state of the art technology employed by the leading exchanges of the world and a multi-asset, multi-currency platform, integrated into all post-trade functions, with customary key features such as connectivity and risk management will be in the service of all investors. All these ambitious transformational steps were successfully accomplished in one year though such achievements would have easily taken years to complete.

The real estate sector, with its huge potential, has been one of the most motivating areas for this redesign of the capital market. The economic dynamism, growing middle class and young population are no doubt the most influential factors driving the appeal of the real estate sector. Real estate finance is on the other side of the coin.

The robust and sustainable growth of the sector necessitates the accompaniment of effectively functioning primary and secondary markets. This is where the capital market steps in.

With this perspective in mind, one of the pillars of the restructuring process has been to activate mechanisms aimed at enhancing the involvement of the capital market into the real estate business. The new regulatory framework, diversifying the financial products on real estate and increasing the financing alternatives for real estate companies, strongly backs the development of the sector.

To note about the diversity of real estate based financial products; equity of real estate investment companies (REICs) and infrastructure REICs, real estate certificates, participation certificates of real estate funds, sukuk and mortgage backed securities are first to be mentioned. Enlarged financing alternatives of REICs through issuance of sukuk and real estate certificates are expected to further strengthen the financial position and profitability.

Turkish real estate sector offers great potential, and it is no secret. The ratio of the housing credits to GDP (%7 as of September 2013) and the level of securitization are at relatively low levels. Mega infrastructure projects and urban transformation feed the momentum of the sector. Besides, in addition to the residential housing, office building construction need has also increased with the İstanbul Financial Centre (IFC) project. It is happy to say that, with enhanced regulations and reshaped markets in accordance with the global standards, we have the necessary infrastructure for effective financing and investing.

Turkish real estate sector is a sector of opportunities. Strong demand side will further be supported by institutional investors like newly introduced real estate funds and reformed private pension system which has increased more than twofold in terms of portfolio size in the last 3 years. The number of real estate investment companies listed on Borsa İstanbul has also more than doubled in the last 4 years, reaching 30 by the end of 2013. Increase in the number of listed REICs does not only reflect the dynamism but also points to the increased transparency in the real estate sector which is a key parameter of foreign investor interest. Indeed, Turkey is ranked 3rd among the emerging markets for real estate investment and 4th among countries providing the best capital appreciation opportunity, in the Association of Foreign Investors in Real Estate (AFIRE) 2013 Survey.

As the main actor of the “İstanbul Finance Centre” project, our main motivation is to make İstanbul a financial hub where international market participants are located, adequate financial, legal and technical infrastructure are available for the development of new markets and products and financial activity is performed in an efficient manner. In line with the IFC vision, Borsa İstanbul stepped up its efforts to turn into a global exchange with high liquidity, diverse issuer/investor base, state of the art technology and rich product mix. İstanbul's potential appealed our enthusiasm and made available such time demanding process to take life in short time of span.

THE FUTURE STILL LOOKS BRIGHT FOR TURKEY

Emerging Trends in Real Estate Europe 2014, the eleventh edition in the series of joint reports from PwC and ULI, emphasises “demographics” and “sustainability” this year, as well as “alternative developments” and “fast growing secondary locations” while underlining a “more positive” year and a “battle for prime assets”.

“Although İstanbul dropped several places in the rankings, it remains one of the top 10 most favoured cities for investment because it is a high growth market backed by a strong economy. Turkey's demographics are also appealing, with a young and rapidly growing population of 75 million. Retail is attractive because affluence is increasing and the middle class is establishing itself,” says the report.

Also, as mentioned in the report “demographics matters”, taking this year's main trends into consideration it is not possible for any international real estate player to ignore Turkey. The young and growing population of Turkey would definitely attract real estate investors who are looking for new growth opportunities in an aging Europe. For investors look for more green alternatives, the Turkish market, with its all-new development opportunities, provides a greenfield investment environment. Student housing, healthcare and serviced apartments, which are mentioned among the top five investment alternatives, are also a good fit for Turkey's growing market demand.

Considering recent legal developments on the financing side (real estate funds, real estate certificates, rental certificates, infrastructure real estate companies etc.), economic stability and ongoing mega infrastructure projects, in addition to the above mentioned market dynamics, I believe the future for Turkish real estate is bright and the country is ready to take its turn in the spotlight.

FACTS AND FIGURES: RESIDENTIAL

Residential market is the main driver of Turkish real estate industry. Still holding a great deal of potential in the long term in parallel to the economic growth of the country, the market has developed significantly in recent years. Expected population growth, demographic structure, urbanisation rate, changes in the lifestyles, and changes in migration indicators are the determining dynamics of the residential market in Turkey. The share of mortgage credits in GNP and in total credits indicates a significant potential, compared to other countries. The rapid increase in sale and rent prices in recent years attracts the attention of investors as well.

The "Reciprocity Law" and the "Law of the Regeneration of Areas under Disaster Risk" which were put in force recently will lead the market to both local and foreign demand.

Urban regeneration is one the most important projects of the next decade, envisioning 6,5 million homes and 400 billion USD transaction volume.

FACTS AND FIGURES: OFFICE

The office market in Turkey is mainly driven by Istanbul, developing on a regional basis. A substantial office supply has been delivered in the central business district of Istanbul during the last 10 years. Correspondingly, a significant office demand has been observed while vacancy rates are decreased and office rents are increased. In addition to Istanbul, Ankara and Izmir are likely to experience growth. Istanbul office market, particularly, offers significant opportunities which are revealed by major indicators, such as the potential growth of Turkish economy, the transformation possibility of industrial regions to service & trade regions during urban regeneration, the growth of Turkish companies, the fact that Turkey is a regional hub for international companies, and the Istanbul Financial Centre project. Furthermore, indicating a further development, the existing office stock is quite low, compared to other world cities of trade and finance. In the short and midterm, office investments particularly in Istanbul will offer higher returns and challenges than many saturated markets.

FACTS AND FIGURES: RETAIL

The share of modern retail within retail market varies by years depending on economic growth, increase in personnel income, urbanisation, and changes in lifestyles. According to the basic assumptions regarding economic and social development in Turkey, the increase in modern retail market share will continue to increase until 2023. All forecasts for the growth of retail expenditures and modern retail indicate that significant opportunities will continue to emerge in the retail market.

Thanks to high yields, shopping centres will continue to be the first option among commercial properties for investors.

Shopping centres with a distinct concept and multipurpose centres will have the advantage for future. Istanbul has already become a regional centre for neighbouring countries. The appetite of international retail chains for the market and the increase in the number of local retail chains are the main reasons behind the substantial development.

In the last couple of years significant developments are seen in shopping centers in cities other than Istanbul.

FACTS AND FIGURES: HOTEL

"Tourism Strategy of Turkey - 2023", a research study which was issued by the Ministry of Culture and Tourism in 2007, has the nature of a roadmap for Turkish tourism in the long run. All indicators and strategies put into effect with the research indicate that Turkish hotel market will show a rapid development with high rate of returns in the coming periods.

In parallel to Turkey's positive growth there has been hotel developments in almost all of the secondary cities of Anatolia. Significant increase in numbers of domestic and foreign visitors is the main driving force behind this change.

In recent years, many international hotel chains entered the hotel market in Istanbul, and this trend is rapidly growing in other primary cities. Room rates, revenues per room, and occupancy rates has showed a significant increase in primary cities. Due to all these factors, revenues and investment returns will keep on increasing as well.

GREEN BUILDINGS IN TURKEY

GREEN BUILDINGS AND GREEN BUILDING RATING SYSTEMS HAVE OFFICIALLY BEEN IN TURKEY SINCE 2008.

GREEN BUILDING IS AN EMERGING TREND IN TURKISH REAL ESTATE MARKET WHICH HAS RAPIDLY GAINED SPEED. TODAY THERE ARE 250 PROJECTS WHICH ARE CERTIFIED OR REGISTERED FOR A CERTIFICATE.

LEED (LEADERSHIP IN ENERGY AND ENVIRONMENTAL DESIGN)

LEED Commercial Schemes (including NC-New Construction, CS-Core & Shell, and Commercial Interiors) are by far the most popular green building rating systems in Turkey. There are currently 60 Certified LEED buildings in Turkey; 32 of them New Construction, 13 of them are Core & Shell, 6 of them are Commercial Interiors, 6 of them are Existing Buildings, 1 Retail CI and 1 Retail NC.

Among the registered and ongoing 156 LEED projects, distribution is as follows; 106 of them are New Construction, 41 of them are Core & Shell, 3 of them are Schools, 2 of them are Commercial Interiors, 6 of them are Existing Buildings, 1 Retail NC.

		certified	registered
BD+C Building Design and Construction	NC - New Construction	32	106
	CS - Core & Shell	13	41
	Schools	-	3
	NC Retail	1	1
ID+C Interior Design and Construction	Healthcare	-	1
	Commercial Interiors	6	2
O+M Operation and Maintenance	ID+C Retail	2	-
	Existing Buildings	6	2
TOTAL		60	156

When urban regeneration and existing building stock is considered, Turkey has a great potential in terms of existing building improvements. In addition, more specific versions such as LEED for Schools and LEED for Healthcare have great potential, especially in line with the upcoming urban development projects for different regions.

The Ministry of Health has started a sector specific program in 2012 called the "Energy Efficiency in Health Sector" which obliges to take actions on the issue of energy efficiency and sustainability. One of the obligations is to achieve a LEED rating for all new hospitals with more than 200 beds.

In addition to commercial schemes, LEED for Homes Scheme for low and midrise residential buildings is becoming more popular in Turkey. Currently there is only 1 project with 10 houses certified and 2 mid-rise projects registered. LEED for HOMES scheme has the potential to be adopted to the compliant homes and villas that shall be built in summer resorts and countryside of Istanbul. Additionally, upto 6 floor residential building could be assessed under LEED for Homes mid-rise scheme.

CERTIFICATION LEVELS FOR LEED

BREEAM (BUILDING RESEARCH ESTABLISHMENT ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT SYSTEM)

Second most popular Green Building certification option in Turkey is UK-based BREEAM system. Currently, 33 projects are certified (interim and final) under different BREEAM Schemes. 15 of these projects are certified under BREEAM International New Building Schemes including Offices, Industrial, Retail and Bespoke. Remaining 18 are certified under BREEAM In-Use, scheme developed for existing building assessment.

BREEAM In-Use scheme assesses existing buildings in three categories. First category (Asset) has relatively easier requirements, therefore making this scheme most popular among BREEAM schemes. Industrial and Retail schemes, custom designed for Industrial and Retail developments offer high potential for these types of building projects. Very Good and Good levels are most common BREEAM certification levels in Turkey. However, all excellent levels are BREEAM In-Use Projects.

CERTIFICATION LEVELS FOR BREEAM

TURKISH GREEN BUILDING RATING SYSTEMS

Currently there are several interest groups working to develop a national green building rating system for Turkey. These institutions are a public institute, a university and an NGO. All systems are currently under development and are accepting only pilot projects. Although once developed, a national system shall bring numerous advantages and may be adopted by several building developers and/or public buildings, popularity of LEED and Breeam shall prevail due to their brand name and international experience. Still a national green building system or code is needed when housing need and urban regeneration in Turkey is considered.
